

Adam Slutskin, Vice President of Sales, joined the company in 2009 and was first asked to build out the Worldwide Business Development Team. He currently leads a team of about 60 people responsible for worldwide sales and has overseen rapid and record revenue growth.

With more than 10 years of successful technology sales experience, Adam served as Senior Director of Business Development at Kaseya where he built the North America Business Development Team. His work culminated in the most successful month in Kaseya's history. He began his career at Broadwing where he sold voice and data services and earned Presidents Club status. He was also named to the Presidents Club as both a representative and manager at Computer Associates while selling Security, Back-up and Infrastructure solutions to the mid-market.

Adam has a distinguished military background and served in the United States Air Force for more than 20 years. As a C-5 aircrew member in both Active and Reserve, Adam has been awarded the Air Medal, Aerial Achievement Medal and the Global War on Terrorism Medal. A diehard Yankees fan, Adam grew up in New York, has been married for 20 years and has three sons.
